BEST BABIES HAVE FIRST FIELD DAY IN BIG CONTEST FOR FAME IN SWEEPSTAKES

Little Champions of the Home Circles Prove Obedient, Smiling, and Only One Cried During Afternoon and Amazed the Others

EVERY TYPE OF CHILD APPEARS FOR TESTS

Mrs. Pendroy Presents Little Ones With Balloons and Acts as Mrs. Santa Claus to the Whole Storkland Contingent

Tuesday was child day at Pendroy's big store, when the best babies of the Glendale district whose ages had been registered as 4, 5 and 6 years faced the judges who were to determine the finest children in the group.

Practically without exception, they were beautiful youngsters of which any parent might be proud. Sometimes a child was a trifle under weight, sometimes it had tonsils not quite perfect, or adenoids which reduced the score, but the majority graded very well and about 25 were so exceptionally good that the judges had to carefully study to determine in just what order they should be ranked.

The surprising thing was the goodness of the little boys and girls, their obedience to mother, and their good natured play with each other. There wasn't a cross word, nor a bit of crying except from a tired baby who came as a visitor.

Every type of child was represented, the blond, the brunette, the red-haired youngster. Blue eyes brown eyes, gray eyes in lovely perfection gazed with confidence into the faces of the judges who seemed to enjoy their task immensely, and the straight-haired boys and girls held their own with the curly haired darlings.

Each card was numbered as made out and the numbers were called in order. Thus, the first comers were judged first.

There was a big rush at the start and Mrs. Pendroy, who is thoroughly experienced in baby contests, served as one of the registry clerks, furnishing also an attendant to call the children in.

The physicians who gave their services this first day were: Dr. Laura Brown, who has charge of the contest, Dr. A. M. Duncan, Dr. Fredrick Rossiter, Dr. Frances Eble.

Physicians in attendance Tuesday were Dr. Laura Brown, Dr. A. M. Duncan, Dr. D. A. Baker, Dr. Frederick Rossiter, Dr. O. A. Dieterich, Dr. Frances Eble, Dr. A. D. Smith, Dr. Luella Hukill.

Assisting nurses from the Glendale sanitarium were Miss Edna Smith, Miss Mary Martin, Miss Esther Hahn, and Miss Judith Herling. They enjoyed the experience immensely, and today four others are to be given the same chance, viz: Misses Norma Rogers, Mary Adams, Helen Gardner and Lorraine Hatcher.

On guard at the door of the room in which the bulk of the examining was done, was Miss Hallie Drake, head of the baby department at Pendroys.

Mrs. Pendroy was a summer Mrs. Santa Claus who presented to all the children balloons with which they had great sport but not in a boisterous way.

There were a number of on-lookers, grand-mothers who couldn't stay away and other baby lovers who wanted a peep at the show including some fathers and grandfathers. It was worth a try to creep under the canvas and it will doubtless bring more spectators as the week advances.

GLENDALE HIGH IS EMBARRASSED BY ORATORS

Those of Southern California and Central Leagues Seek Affiliation

With membership offered by two high school debating leagues, Isabel Tousey, debating manager at the high school, is having troubles. It seems that there is a great demand for matches with the Glendale orators. Both the Southern California Debating league and the Central Debating league have offered the local high a place in their respective organizations.

The Southern California league includes Los Angeles high schools, Long Beach and all the largest schools in the southern part of the state.

"We are between two fires and it will be very nearly impossible to accept both offers," said Miss Tousey today. "The Southern California league offers a much larger field than the Central league yet we do not wish to to disregard the smaller league."

Miss Tousey and Mr. Brewster, debating coach, will attend a meeting of the Southern California league on Saturday at Normal Hill Center in Los Angeles.

HIGH CABINET SUSTAINS THE CONSTITUTION

Substitution Rejected When Presented by Former Members

Substitution of the present constitution was rejected after submission to the high school cabinet, by former cabinet members, at a special meeting of the cabinet, Tuesday.

Maintaining that the present constitution failed to provide for a full representation of the student body, the delegation, headed by prominent students in high school affairs, asked the approval by the present cabinet of the new document.

Student body officials claim that the new plan would nearly double the number of officers but fails to provide a substantial reason for the increase, hence the rejection.

REV. NORTON REPORTS ON ENCAMPMENT

The G. A. R. folks from Glendale who are attending the National Encampment at Des Moines, Iowa seem to be having a good time, according to word received from Rev. C. R. Norton.

He writes to the Glendale Daily Press as follows: "We had a lovely trip from Los Angeles to Des Moines and are enjoying every minute of the time spent here. This city can be proud of the way they have arranged for the care and protection of our encampment. The decorations are splendid. There are automobiles to take us everywhere and street car fare provided. Many, many things are free to us.

"It is estimated that there are 50,000 in attendance at the encampment. We have a lovely home here with friends. Election takes place here today. You will be given results.

Sincerely, Rev. C. R. Norton."

BOY SCOUTS TO HAVE OWN DAY IN CITY

October 7 Set Aside for the Husky Youths of the Verdugo Hills

Saturday will be boy scout day.

October 7 is being turned over by the people of Glendale to the husky Glendale youngsters who compose that wonderful organization. The boys need help. Their organization has run several hundred behind during the past year and they are going to provide a mighty fine entertainment Saturday in an effort to make up this deficit.

at 2 o'clock with a ball game be-

The program will start promptly tween representatives of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs of Glendale. This will be of three inning duration, and it promises to be replete with high lights, acrobatic stunts, hair-raising stunts—everything but profanity. The only thing barred is the strangle hold.

Following this all-star attraction there will be a game between the Glendale Merchants' team and the Eagles of Eagle Rock. These Eagle Rock boys are a strong bunch of players and a good style of baseball is expected.

In addition to these games there will be many other attractions, the number and character of which will be announced in The Press at a later date. It is a foregone conclusion, however, that the bill-of-fare will be well worth the price of admission. The price of the tickets will be 50 cents and every person in Glendale is expected to be there or send a representative.

WATER AND POWER DEBATE STAGED AT C. OF C.

John Hamlin Favors Measure While L. G. Guernsey Opposes Amendment

The principal feature of the Glendale chamber of Commerce forum luncheon Tuesday was the debate on the water and power amendment, on which the people of California will vote in November. Favoring the measure was John J. Hamlin, while opposing the proposed bill was L. G. Guernsey. Each speaker was given twenty minutes in which to present his case, and no decision was rendered.

J. G. Huntley, who has just returned to Glendale after an absence of several weeks, was present, and gave a short description of his travel, ending by saying that he was glad to be back in Glendale, "the best place in the world."

The Southern Pacific Station committee reported through President Hollister that a meeting had been arranged with officials of the Southern Pacific Railroad for Friday, October 6, and that the results along the railroad line were expected soon.

Dr. Jessie A. Russell gave a very interesting account of tag day, of the committee of which she was chairman. She said that the biggest thing accomplished in the drive was the broadening of the community spirit in Glendale.

W. B. Karr made the announcement of a benefit to be given for the boy scout movement in Glendale on next Saturday at 2 o'clock. The affair will be held at the Glendale ball park, corner Park avenue and San Fernando road. There will be a ball game between teams from the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, after which there will be a game between the Glendale Merchants ball team and the Eagle Rock Eagles. Tickets for this event will be 50 cents, and all of the money taken in will go to swell the boy scout fund.

The following new members were voted into membership:

Advance Realty Co., 208 S. Orange St.; Frank C. Ayars, 315 N. Orange; R. E. Corrigan, 145 S. Brand; Jas. J. Delaney, 214 N. Brand Blvd.; Ben F. Dupuy, City Hall; Dr. Morton Egbert, 424 W. Salem; Harvard Gift and Art Shop, 202 E. Harvard; Dr. R. C. Logan, 124 S. Brand Boulevard; Lusby Mortgage and Investment Co., 233 S. Brand; Woodson's Kodakery, 214 1-2 N Brand.

that an up-to-date library reading room would be opened as soon as building facilities could be arranged for.

James Connors was recommended for a residence police officer for this district in answer to requests from Chief of Police Fraser.

This being the annual meeting, by-laws and the constitution were read and some recommendations made for amendment.

The Foothill Improvement association strongly recommends that the city council purchase the adjoining 13 acres to the present Patterson avenue park for park purposes only.

The next meeting will begin a membership drive and social features will be added to the regular program of business. Membership boundary lines have been removed and all are invited to become members who will cheerfully co-operate with the association in the improvement and up-building of the northwest section of Glendale.

The social committee of the association is arranging for a community social to be given on Friday, October 13. This will be in the nature of a house warming to the principal and teachers of the new Grand View school.

FOOTHILL FOLKS AGAINST SLUDGE SEWER SYSTEM

That the Glendale Foothill Improvement Association cannot support the Federation of Improvement associations in the matter of a sludge plan sewer system for the northwest section of the city was made known last night at the association's meeting held in the new Grand View school house. Much discussion on this question was gone into and the above decision made.

The regular order of business was taken up and the election of officers for the coming year were as follows:

President, Alexander Mitchell; vice-president, W. S. Sanderson; secretary, Mrs. M. B. Buckman; treasurer, G. A. Lucas. The executive committee includes John R. Grey, Dr. J. G. Grimm, Miss Connors, E. H. Learned, Mrs. Charles Ellsperman, Mrs. G. A. Lucas, Mrs. E. H. Botsford and Mrs. M. B. Buckman.

The northwest section was assured by the library board, the city council and city manager Reeves

Ball 2. Strike 2, called. Schang singled to left on a line drive. Ward up. Strike 1, called. Ball 1. Ward out, Groh to Kelly. No runs, one hit, no errors.

GIANTS—Kelly up. Kelly, strike 1, swung. Strike 2, swung. Kelly fanned, the third being called. Stengel up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Ball 2. Stengel out, Ward to Pipp on an easy chance. Snyder up. Snyder out, Dugan to Pipp on the first ball. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third inning:

YANKS—Scott up. Strike one, called. Scott popped to Groh. Bush up. Ball 1. Bush flied to Bancroft, who made a brilliant running catch over his shoulders in deep left center. Witt up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Ball 2. Strike 2, called. Witt out, Frisch to Kelly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Nehf continued to work most effectively. He had a curve that was breaking perfectly, Bancroft's catch was the first thrilling piece of fielding. It robbed Bush of an apparently sure hit.

Giants—Nehf up. Strike 1, swung. Foul, strike 2. Ball 1. Nehf out on a grounder to Pipp, unassisted. Bancroft up. Ball 1. Ball 2. Strike 1, called. Bancroft out, Ward to Pipp, on a little roller. Frisch popped to Ward in short center. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Bush was still a bit wobbly and could do nothing with his curve ball, while the Giants were hitting viciously at his fast one. Meusel's fine throw from the left field fence cut off what looked like a home run for Groh.

Fourth Inning—Yanks. Dugan up. Strike 1, swung. Ball 1. Strike 2, called. Ball 2. Dugan singled past Bancroft. Ruth up. Ruth forced Dugan at second, Frisch to Bancroft, on the first ball. Pipp up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Strike 2, called. Ball 2. Foul. Ball 3. Pipp fanned, swinging, and Ruth was doubled stealing, Snyder to Bancroft. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Nehf for the first time started to wobble on Pipp when he went to "three and two." The Yanks tried the hit and run when Pipp fanned but Ruth was easily caught going down.

GIANTS—E. Meusel up. Strike 1, called. Meusel out, Scott to Pipp. Young up. Ball 1. Ball 2. Strike 1, called. Foul, strike 2, Ball 3. Young fanned. The third one being called. Kelly up. Kelly singled to left on the first ball. It was a fast drive past Dugan. Stengel up. Stengel popped to Ward. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Bush was still nervous and had trouble with his curve ball. He tightened, however, after Kelly's single, and made Stengel bite on a bad ball for an easy out.

Fifth Inning.

YANKS—R. Meusel up. Ball 1. Strike 1, swung. Meusel singled to Bancroft. It was a hard chance which the Giant shortstop did well in stoping. Schang up. Schang sacrificed Nehf to Kelly, on the first ball. Ward up. Ball 1. Foul strike 1. Ball 2. Ball 3. Ward walked. It was the first pass of the game. Scott up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Scott lined into a double play, Young to Frisch. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Scott's hit looked like a sure single, but Young cut it down with a beautiful shoestring catch and doubled Meusel by 20 yards.

GIANTS—Snyder up. Strike 1, called. Snyder out. Scott to Pipp. Scott threw high to first and Pipp had to leap for it. Nehf up. Strike 1, called. Strike 2, swung. Ball 1. Foul. Nehf popped to Ward in short right field. Bancropt up. Strike 1. Strike 2, called. Foul. Ball 1. Foul. Ball 2. Bancroft out, Scott to Pipp. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Bush was getting better. He had the Giants hitting at bad balls and going out on easy chances, to the infield.

Sixth Inning:

YANKS—Bush up. Strike 1, called. Ball 1. Ball 2. Foul, strike 2. Bush out, Bancroft to Kelly. Bancroft made a beautiful stop of a hard drive. Witt up. Foul, strike 1. Witt was safe when Meusel muffed his fly. It was hard chance and it went for a triple. Meusel ran after the ball clear over to the foul line and barely got his hands on it. Duagn up. Strike 1, called. Ball 1. Strike 2, called. Ball 2. Dugan hit to Bancroft and Witt was run down between third and home, Bancroft to Snyder to Groh to Snyder. Dugan reached second, meanwhile. Ruth up. Strike 1, called. Strike 2, swung. Ball 1. Ruth singled to center, scoring Dugan. Young fumbled the ball and Ruth took second, sliding. Pipp up. Foul, strike 1. Pipp grounded to Kelly unassisted. One run, two hits, one error.

The Yanks finally got to Nehf and he was saved from more than one run by the tight defense of the Giant infield. Witt made a foolish attempt to score on Dugan's grounder and was cut down easily.

Sixth inning:

GIANTS—Groh up. Ball 1. Strike 1, swung. Foul, strike 2. Foul. Ball 2. Ball 3. Groh walked. Frisch up. Frisch fouled out on the first ball, to Schang. Groh was out at first. E. Meusel up. Ball

Strike 1, called. Ball 2. Ball 3. Strike 2, swung. Groh out, stealing, Schang to Ward when Meusel failed to connect on a hit and run play.

Meusel was tagged out when Schang dropped his third strike, but quickly recovered it. No runs, no hits, no errors.

The Yank battery fooled Meusel on the hit and run play and Groh was out. Bush seemed to be getting stronger.

Seventh Inning.

YANKS—R. Meusel up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Meusel singled to left. It was a line drive in front of his brother. Schang up. Schang bunted to Nehf who threw wild to second, Meusel going to third and Schang to second on the error.

Ward up. Ward flied to Stengel, Meusel scoring after the catch. Scott up; four, strike 1; ball 1; strike 2, called; ball 2.

Ball 3. The official scorers announced that Young drew an error for fumbling Nehf's wild throw over second. Scott flied to Stengel, who made a nice running catch, Schang being held at second. Bush up; ball 1. Bush hit to Groh, who tagged Schang out on the baseline. One run, one hit, two errors.

Groh made a nice stop of Bush's hit and dove after Schang on the baseline, tagging him for the third out.

GIANTS—Young up. Strike 1, called. Foul, strike 2. Ball 1. Young flied to Ruth on an easy chance. Kelly up. Ball 1. Kelly was safe at first when Bush fell down after his grounder down the third base line. It was scored as a single. Stengel up. Ball 1.

Ball 2. Strike 1, called. Stengel singled past Scott, Kelly stopping at second. Snyder up. Ball 1. Snyder hit to Scott, who fumbled the ball, and the bases were filled. It was a hard chance and went for a hit.

E. Smith batting for Nehf. E. Smith up. Ball 1. Foul, strike 1. Ball 2. Ball 3. Foul, strike 2. Foul. Smith hit into a double play, Scott to Ward to Pipp. No runs. Three hits, no errors.

Totals end of seventh inning: Yanks 2, Giants 0.

Scott made a brilliant stop of a hard hit ball and threw to Ward, who made a low throw to first base. Pipp took it out of dirt.

Ball 1. Ball 2. Strike 1, called. Foul, strike 2. Witt fanned, swinging. Dugan up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Dugan filed to Stengel. Ruth up.

Ball 1. Ball 2. Strike 1, called. Strike 2, called. Ruth fanned, looking at the last one. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ruth was greatly peeved at the second called strike and when Umpire Klem waved him out on the third, he tossed his bat high in the air and strode slowly to the outfield with his head down.

Eighth Inning:

GIANTS—

Bancroft up. Strike 1, called. Ball 1. Ball 2. Strike 2, called. Bancroft singled to right on a Texas leaguer. Groh up. Groh singled to right, his third hit.

Bancroft took second. Frisch up. Frisch singled to left, Bancroft being held at third by Meusel's fast fielding. The bases were filled again. E. Meusel up. Three pitchers warmed up in the Yank bull pen. Meusel singled to center on the first ball, scoring Bancroft and Groh, and tying the score.

Bush was taken out of the box and Hoyt took his place. Frisch is on second and Meusel on first. Young up. Ball 1. Foul, strike 1. Ball 2. Ball 3. Young flied to Witt, Frisch scoring standing up after the catch. Witt made a nice running catch far over to left field. Kelly up. Ball 1. Strike 1, called. Strike 2, called. Kelly fanned, swinging. Stengel up. Ball 1. Ball 2. Ball 3, strike 1, called. Foul, strike 2. Stengel fanned looking at the third one. Three runs, four hits, no errors.

Busch, who had threatened to blow several times, went up at the start of the inning when he was found for four successive singles. He was wild and had to deliver them down the center of the plate. Hoyt, who relieved him pitched smoothly and got out of the hole.

Ninth Inning:

YANKS—Strike 1, called. Strike 2, foul.

Foul. Foul. Pipp singled to left center. E. Meusel up. Ball 1. Strike 1, swung. Meusel hit into a double play, Frisch to Kelly.

HUGGINS PREDICTS YANKS WILL MAKE HIM PROUD

By MILLER J. HUGGINS
Manager for New York Yankees

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Pennants and world's series are not won by predictions of the manager. You get the hits, runs and pitching out there on the ball field. Therefore, I am not going to start out by isaying that the Yankees are going to crush the Giants for four straight in this 1922 world's series. I will say this much, however, that it is my wish and I will not be a bit surprised see us finish the series next Saturday.

However, experience has taught me the uncertainties of baseball. What better illustration is necessary than two series of games we played this season?

DAMAGED

GLENDALE OWNED FINANCIAL CO. ORGANIZED

Lusby Mortgage and Investment Company to Give Local Service

The Lusby Mortgage and Investment Company, Glendale's first incorporated mortgage investment service, organized by local investors, for local service, has opened offices at 233 South Brand Boulevard, ready to serve the community.

The Lusby Mortage and Investment Company was incorporated under the laws of the State of California on September 20, 1922, and by its Articles of Incorporation may buy, sell and otherwise deal in investment securities, including notes, bonds, mortgages, trust deeds, etc. The incorporators were C. D. Lusby, until September 30 last Cashier of the Glendale State Bank, W. E. Lusby, for some years associated with the National City Bank of New York, and, until his recent removal to Glendale, Manager of the Foreign Department of the First National Bank, Detroit, Michigan, and Dr. C. R. Lusby, well known Glendale dental surgeon.

C. D. Lusby and Dr. C. R. Lusby need no introduction to Glendalians, having made this city their home for the past eleven years. Mr. Lusby, senior, was for seven years Cashier of the Glendale Savings Bank, severing that connection several years ago to enter the real estate field. At the time of the organization of the Glendale State Bank about a year ago he returned to the banking business as Cashier and Director of that institution. Although no longer an administrative officer, Mr. Lusby will remain as a member of the Board of directors. Mr. Lusby is one of the Directors of the Chamber of Commerce and has long been identified with that organization.

W. E. Lusby was for six years connected with the National City Bank of New York, serving for more than two years of that period in secretarial capacity to its President, Frank A. Vanderlip, and for more than two years and a half as an Assistant Cashier in charge of foreign accounts and the administration of foreign branches. Mr. Lusby holds the degree of Master of Business Administration from the Graduate School of Business Administration of Harvard University.

Dr. C. R. Lusby is one of Glendale's foremost dental surgeons and has practiced his profession here in Glendale since his graduation from the College of Dentistry of the University of Southern California in 1914. Dr. Lusby's connection with the Company will in no way interfere with his professional duties.

The officers of the Company are C. D. Lusby, President and Treasurer, W. E. Lusby, Vice-President and Secretary, and Dr. C. R. Lusby, Vice-President. The business will be quartered in the Wishart Building, 233 South Brand Blvd.

In discussing the Company's outlook and plans, Mr. C. D. Lusby says:

"Those of us who have watched the steady march of progress in Southern California and in Glendale in particular are convinced beyond any question that there are great things ahead, that we can look forward with confidence to a continued and well digested growth in population and business for some years to come. The recovery of the country as a whole from the depression of the past few years will, in our opinion, do much to promote the development of the great Pacific southwest. Bank clearings and building permits issued continue to eclipse all records of previous years.

"Southern California still continues its magic spell over our friends in the states to the east of us, and we who live here can understand why. For this reason, we look for a continued immigration of people who have long had eyes on this section.

"Property values are to a great extent proven, and investors who previously have put their savings into unproven properties have been able to take out large profits because of their faith. However, many of those investors are seeking strictly income producing investments. The mortgage and bond field furnishes the best and most ready marketable securities for the conservative investor.

"The incorporators of this Company have for some time been convinced that there is a need in Glendale and adjacent territory for a service organization of this character. Service is our only justification for existence as an integral part of the business life of the community, and we cannot emphasize too strongly this fact, that progress is the result of systematic saving and investment alone and not to a continued flirtation with "wild cat" stocks.

"We ask for the good will and cooperation of our many friends in this new undertaking, and feel sure we will have them."

FRENCH CLUB HAS FIRST MEETING

The French club at the high school held their first meeting under the new administration on Wednesday. The officers were elected last June. Isabel Tousey is president, Ruth Jeckls, vice-president, Ruth Berier, secretary, and Clifton Reabens, treasurer.

The members decided at the meeting to give a banquet and soiree at the close of each semester.

GLENDALE MUSIC CLUB PROGRAM IS ARTISTIC

Distinguished Artists to Appear at First Concert Thursday

JOHN SMALLMAN
Baritone

CLAIRE FORBES CRANE
Pianiste

To members of the Glendale Music club it is a great satisfaction to have the new club year open with as fine a program as that to be presented Thursday night by Claire Forbes Crane, pianiste; John Smallman, baritone, and Julius Kranz, violinist-composer.

Claire Forbes Crane is a pupil of Carl Muck and appeared with great success with the Boston symphony and with the Philharmonic orchestra of Los Angeles, also at the Hollywood Bowl.

Julius Kranz, the vilolinist and composer, is well known in Glendale, and he is making a name for himself nationally, one of his big compositions having been recently accepted by a large eastern publishing company.

John Smallman is regarded as one of the best, if not the best baritone singers on this coast. Of him Edwin Schallert, the musical critic says: "He is a man of versatility and musical learning. For these reasons and the scope of his knowledge as shown in his programs, he deserves to be rated as one of the leaders here in expression of the musical art."

Mrs. A. M. Draper, chairman of door committee will be in charge at the high school auditorium. Mrs. Warren Roberts, treasurer, will be at the door at 7:15 to receive any unpaid dues or to enroll new members. After the 6th of October the club admission fee will be $4 per year, but applicants presenting themselves for membership at this meeting will be received at half price, or $2.

SMALL CROWD AT POLO GROUNDS AT OPENING

By CARL VICTOR LITTLE

POLO GROUNDS, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Honors for hitting the first home-run of the 1922 world series went to Nick Altrock, veteran comedian, who, during his stunts before the first game, clouted out a long fly to the great joy of some 12,000 fans who were scattered throughout the park at noon.

"Nick" made the circuit in his own inimitable style, winding up with a grotesque slide, thus inaugurating the big dispute in true world series fashion.

Altrock and other entertainers kept the bugs busy as small boys at a circus, while every now and then a little flurry of bleacherites drifted in.

When the gates were opened at 10:30 about 1100 folks bought tickets and strolled in. They didn't hurry—the dead march in Saul would have been a quick-step for that procession. Cops had cobwebs on 'em.

Tony Caravelta, famous world's series cop, officially declared the lineup of fans for rush seats to the opening game of the series today to be the smallest within the memory of Casey Stengel.

At 8:30 o'clock this morning 103 bleacher aspirants were yawning and stretching on their camp chairs and soap boxes, and wondering if maybe St. Louis had won the series and they hadn't been told about it.

The pre-game ticket line was so short that scores of other fans, disgorged in haste by each arriving L train, gave the patient waiters the merry ha ha, and departed to seek comfortable hostelries until a "real world series line" should form. Many baseball fans were disconsolate because there was no good-natured jam in which to participate.

Jack Lester, of Philadelphia, was the first fan in line. He had his soap box tucked up tight against the big gates promptly at 3:30 a. m. While this phenomenon was puzzling the 300 or 400 police on all-night duty at the grounds, Joe Solomon from Brooklyn checked in as number two and cuddled up to Lester. Jack likes the Giants and Joe the Yanks, so they had something to talk about until W. R. Graves, from Guthrie, Okla., came along and created a crowd.

The first lady of the line was Irene A. Henderson. She breezed up about dawn, confessed that the boss for whom she stenogs had given her the day off, and tucked herself comfortably into line about 80 souls away from the fence.

Then an old-timer, known to early birds of the series lines since Frank Chance wore sidewhiskers and cavorted around first base out in Illinois, showed up and was given a hearty cheer by a man who afterwards said he was talking in his sleep, and had dreamed Babe Ruth hit a homer, but ran the wrong way around the bases.

This veteran was Dr. A. L. Budreau, of Pittsfield, Mass. Dr. and Mrs. Budreau motored over for the great event; the better half of the family heading for Fifth avenue while her husband got into line at 84, and declared himself for the Yanks.

A. J. Bestedtou, Jersey City; Doyle Ellis, Allen, Neb., and E. R. Prince of Memphis, were among the earliest birds with Roy Paul of Des Moines, Allen Van Devere of Trenton, and D. F. Doheny of St. Albins, N. J., were not far behind. Indications were that the wisecrackers of Hickville-on-the-Hudson, stung last year by stories of the last knothole being sold out four months in advance, had decided to blow down about game time and walk into their seats.

There were no fights.

Truths in Epigram

THE WRIGHT ACT

It may be taken for granted that the people of this end of the state favor the Wright act. The only possible danger that it could fail to receive their overwhelming endorsement must lie in the neglect of voters to register. Attention therefore, is directed to the importance of registering soon. Registration will have to be before Friday of this week. Frequently voters who fully intend to perform this simple civic duty, lose their votes through their own forgetfulness, or because of unexpected circumstances that arise to prevent them. So the present is the time to act.

That the Wright measure should become a law is highly desirable. That its support should be far above the necessary majority is to be hoped for the credit of California. All but two of the states have laws of similar intent, that is, to aid in enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment. Such was the purpose of the Harris act, but objections were raised as to the form of the act itself. The Wright measure has been framed to meet the objections, and fully does so. The old excuses cited for opposing the Harris act do not apply now.

The effect of the Wright act will be to make the federal law also the law of California. It does not interfere with national authority, but it upholds the arm of national authority. It directs and empowers local officers to enforce the terms of prohibition. It is a popular declaration of support for the constitution. It adds nothing to state expenses, but it diverts to the counties the fines that now go to the general government.

So much has been said about the vital demand for suppression of bootlegging, that there is no occasion for repeating the arguments. That the traffic not only is illegal, but that it is dangerous to life and corrupting to morals, are facts concerning which there is no debate. The citizens of California are for law enforcement. As an expression of this sentiment they will vote for the Wright bill.

A CRITIC IN THEIR MIDST

George Beban said this in a recent interview:

"Eighty per cent of the moving picture actors and actresses of today are exhibits—just exhibits—and that is what is wrong with pictures today." He concedes that the men are good looking and the women beautiful, but he regards them mostly as "dumb-bells," a term recognized as conveying reproach.

Perhaps it is well to add that Beban is an actor of high merit, reared in a theatrical atmosphere. It is possible this would tend to make him unduly critical. It may irritate him to see the girl from the ribbon counter promoted to stardom over night, or the handsome male become the rage after having been glimpsed a few times on the screen, and figured in a single divorce. However, the public will be inclined to believe that Beban was telling the truth. It is remarkable that in so many plays the principals display nothing of art, unless it is the art of the modiste. The male principals, however, really are required to do some strenuous acting. When such husky individuals as Bill Farnum or Horse Peters engage in a fight before the camera, either it is acting, or they hate each other to death. It may be, even then, that a director is responsible, as he stands out of range and ejaculates "Soak 'im in the eye Bill!" or "Now a right to the chin, House!" This, however, is a professional secret.

Of course filmdom is angry. It rocks to its foundations at the impact of the Beban brick-bats. The next time the girls see him they will act. They will register scorn, indifference, or more acute emotion. Perhaps the training will do them good. It may be they needed to be stirred up.

A WIDESPREAD EVIL

The arrest and partial exposure of a bogus spiritualist who had operated in Los Angeles, it is said may lead to a nation-wide investigation of trick mediums, and occult specialists generally. Investigation is not so much needed as action on the information already in possession of the police of all cities. Members of a certain class profess to read the future, to direct human destiny, to solve the problems confronting the individual in distress. That they are swindlers may be taken for granted. That in a most heartless fashion they prey upon the unfortunate, is a matter of common knowledge. It was a matter of common knowledge before the apprehension of this particular rascal. Why such farcical confidence games are permitted is so difficult to explain that there is futility in attempting to explain it. The man who sells worthless stock is under the ban of the law. The hawker of spurious gold bricks, soon or late, arrives at the prison. But a lot of charlatans pretending to sell that which they never possessed, and never by any possibility, could possess, hang out their signs, light their punk sticks, and gather in the money not only undisturbed, but with the apparent backing of the authorities. The practitioners of palpable fraud have licenses for their unholy traffic. They seem to be recognized as having a profession worthy of being listed elsewhere than in the records of the police. Their advertisements are received in papers presumed to be respectable. Here and there, as in the present instance, the swindler is charged with some overt act of indecency or outrage, and has to give bail until the affair blows over. But if the operator of the game is reasonably cautious, confining himself or herself to the lying patter of the calling, there is a chance of getting by without interference; so good a chance that most of them do it.

BEAUTY OF ECONOMY

When, unexpectedly, American war ships were ordered into the zone of turmoil in the Near East, it became necessary to have charts. The ships were without the charts, and they had to be purchased of the British at $12,000. Congress has been making a record for economy. It is possible, no doubt, to make such a record, and along with it, pile up a record for wisdom and efficiency. In some of these respects congress seems to have fallen noticeably short of perfection, but as to economy, it is able to point with pride, if stirred by such an emotion. Anyhow, it may point.

The explanation is that the hydrographic division of the navy is not allowed sufficient funds to prepare the charts with which naval vessels should be equipped. The vessels sail without the equipment. An emergency arises, and the equipment has to be obtained, regardless of price. It happened in this instance that the ships were in touch with a friendly power, and could get the accommodation. Another emergency might find them in enemy waters, alone, in which case they would be "up against it" as the saying is.

Congress is very welcome to save in many particulars. Every time it cuts out a bit of expensive red tape, or nips a raid on the treasury, it is applauded. The people of this country, however, take pride in the quality and prowess of their navy. They have not the slightest desire to see it crippled, and when it sails in alien seas, they do not want it to limp along, depending on a tow from some friendly power, that pays to keep its ships in trim.

Between 1915 and 1922 internal revenue receipts in southern California increased 2000 per cent. These figures seem startling, and yet they are in perfect keeping with the general development and expansion of this section.

The Real Foundation of Business

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A business man emerged from the subway at Brooklyn Bridge and climbed up into a bootblack chair.

Dr. Frank Crane

The bootblack, a tough, emaciated, untidy youth of eighteen, went to work on his shoes.

The job was almost complete when the man suddenly discovered to his horror that he had not a cent of money on his person. He had changed suits and neglected to get his wallet from his coat pocket. The subway had taken his last nickel of change.

He was worried. For all he knew, the hard-boiled lad shining his shoes might have him pinched for attempting to steal a shine.

The boy watched him trying every pocket of his clothes over and over again.

At last the business man gathered his courage in both fists and stammered out an explanation of his predicament.

The shine artist straightened up and grinned at him. From below he had been sizing up his customer after the shrewd fashion of his kind.

"Are ya flat?" he asked And then, a little apologetically, "I kin let ya have a dollar, if that's any good to ya?"

The business man, who had half expected to be arrested, stared down at the shine artist.

"But you dont' know me," he protested. "You've never seen me before. You might never see me again."

"Aaah, y're all right. Here, here the twenty-five. Gimme it back whenever ya git ready."

The business man, slightly dazed, got down from the chair.

"Don't you even want my name?" he asked "I might leave my watch with you for security——"

"Naw, naw, I'll take a chance on ya!" the bootblack averred heartily, and turned to his next customer.

The man in this story is James E. Clark, editor of the Journal of the American Bankers' Association, and the moral is that the real foundation of business is not Things of any sort, money nor securities, nor houses nor lands—it is THE ABILITY TO ESTIMATE.

Or, to speak the language of the street, the Power to Size Up People.

I knew one man who was making $150,000 a year in a wholesale house by simply sizing up the customers who came in.

Nothing in this world is so rare and valuable as sound judgment. Its price is above rubies.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

QUERIES

J. F Stocking, Wilbraham, Mass.: "Is it correct to say 'Each and every package is guaranteed'? It seems to me that 'every' is redundant because 'each' and 'every' are synonymous." Answer: Each and every are synonymous, both words being distributive, but each being a little more explicit than every. The meaning is fully conveyed by saying "Each package is guaranteed."

T. Ballinger, New York, N. Y.: "In the article 'Heard in Indiana' you had 'The baby wants to come in'. Would not 'wishes' be a better word; as, the baby wishes to come in only and is not in need of coming in Wishes is the better word. Answer: The following information will be found in the New Standard Dictionary: "want; wish for; desire; crave . . . wish; to have or cherish a desire for; covet; crave; want."

Earl Mauck, Welch, W. Va.: "The first sentence in the Saturday Evening Post of even date is taken from an engineer's report and reads as follows: 'In all that vast expanse of country west of Fort Riley clear to the sierras of California there are not over four hundred thousand acres of arable land'. Should it not be 'there is' instead of 'there are', to say nothing of the phrase 'over four'?" Answer: From the New Standard Dictionary: "over: . . . Reaching above or beyond in quantity or amount; in excess of; as, over 500 pounds. In this sense the expression more than is generally preferable." Suggestion: there are not more than four hundred thousand acres of arable land.

Miss K. Lynch, Chicago, Ill.: "Will you kindly advise which salutation (Ladies or Mesdames) is correct in addressing a letter to two or more women?" Answer: Mesdames is preferable.

Yesterday's Error

"May I trouble you to tell me which is correct, and why; 'a lot of us girls'; or, 'lot of we girls'."

The foregoing sentence is interrogative and should be followed by an interrogation point. The letters received by "The Right Word" show much careless punctuation.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

If the way of life were all straight and smooth and even, and if the expected always happened, then our progress through it might be swift, easy and free from danger or accident.

But—

Life is not a smooth, even and straight highway.

It is a way of twistings and turnings and windings and unevenness.

And we have to take that into account in making our journey.

If we could step on the gas and turn the motor loose and whizz along a straight road, nicely and evenly paved, and with no intersections or curves or turns, we could make rapid progress.

With comparative freedom from danger.

But—

Just as we get going about forty or fifty miles an hour, some other driver may pop out of an intersecting road.

And then it is a case of jammed brakes and quick action and at that we may not avoid a collision.

* * *

So as we travel the way of life we find that when we get going at high speed something is likely to pop out at an intersection.

And there may be a collision.

Life is reasonably full of cross roads and intersections.

And we need to take them into account.

Then we may speed up on an inviting stretch of road.

And when things are humming along smoothly, there is a jolt, a bump and a jar.

A chuck hole in the road.

With a smashed wheel, a broken axle or something like that.

It was the unexpected thing again.

Who looked for a chuck hole on a perfectly straight and even road?

Yet the wise and careful driver always expects the chuck hole where it had no right to be.

Because that is where chuck holes are.

And when the accident is over and the damage repaired and the motor and the driver are out of the hospital, there is another stage of progress on the journey.

A swing to the side perhaps to avoid some other car or obstacle.

A soft place by the side of the road.

A skid and a turn over.

Of course, there should have been no soft place by the side of the road.

It should have been firm and trustworthy.

But it wasn't.

And the careful driver calculated that that soft place might be there.

So he slowed up accordingly and avoided a smashup.

But the reckless and thoughtless driver went into it at high speed.

With the to-be-expected result.

* * *

So it is much along the way of life as it is along the highway.

The unexpected thing to be taken into account.

The street intersection, the railroad crossing, the chuck hole and the soft place.

The wise wayfarer takes these chances into account.

Experience has taught him that it is better to do so.

We learn to appreciate the fact that we are not the only persons on the road.

And that the road is not perfect as it might be.

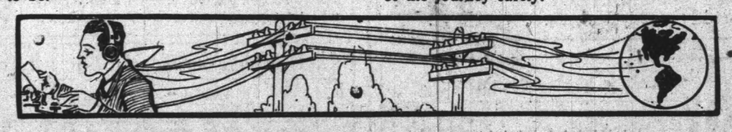
The wise wayfarer takes into account the rights and privileges of the other wayfarer.

He does not claim the road all to himself.

He looks for poppings-out at street intersections.

He takes into account the possible chuck hole.

But in the end he is likely to reach the end of the journey safely.



SONGS OF THE POST'S POETS

SONG—By John Gay (1688-1732)

O ruddier than cherry!
O sweeter than the berry!
O nympth more bright
Than moonshine night,
Like kidlings blithe and merry!
Ripe as the melting cluster!
No lily has such lustre;
Yet hard to tame
As raging flame,
And fierce as storms that bluster!

PREDICT TIME WHEN FOLKS FEEL GLOOMY

Approach of "psychological darkness" can be predicted by the electric light engineer. A. Smirnoff, of the Potomac Electric Power company, Washington, explains a system which may prove of great value to power companies in enabling them to forecast the exact time when people in stores and offices will get that gloomy feeling and switch on their lights.

With the sudden darkening due to clouds or the approach of a shower, users in the business districts of our cities turn on the lights and suddenly throw an extra load upon the power plant. To take care of this unexpected peak, large central power stations maintain expensive storage batteries or additional generators.

If the power plant operator could receive ten to fifteen minutes' warning, says Mr. Smirnoff, he could start his machines and so save the expense of running them when not needed. This warning can be had by the use of measuring devices called photometers or thermopiles located at strategic points in the surrounding country. A light intensity of 1500 foot candles in the open air causes the downtown consumer to begin turning on electric lamps, Mr. Smirnoff has determined from charts covering many different days. They use artificial light even though this intensity is hardly dark enough to absolutely require the additional illumination.

The heat of the sun light is automatically recorded by the photometer. Meteorologists at the United States weather bureau have determined the light equivalent of solar energy thus recorded, and when the photometer records show the heat equivalent of 1500 foot candles, the operators at the power stations are warned of the heavy loads to come.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

MURDER IS MURDER

[Cincinnati Enquirer]

Senator Sterling has introduced a bill making it a felony under the federal law for any person or persons to interfere with the operation of trains in interstate commerce, and making such persons chargeable with murder in the event that lives are lost as a result of such interference.

Rather singular that such a law already is not on the statute books. Murder is murder, but some kinds of murder are more atrocious and abhorrent than others. The fiends who deliberately and with malice aforethought plan the wrecking of trains as an act of revenge against the owners of the roads, and thus, through the execution of their designs, cause the death of innocent and helpless passengers, should be held to be beyond the pale of human mercy. No punishment could be sufficiently severe for the criminals of this class.

Senator Sterling's bill should become a law. Difficult as it is to believe, there are in this country many men who seek to justify such slaughter as an act of reprisal against those they hold to be their enemies. The logic of this murderous philosophy is the same as that preached by the advocates of German frightfulness during the world war.

Murder—the murder of innocent and defenceless men, women and children—at the hands of autocratic groups is becoming more common every day. The horror of Herrin was only a little more spectacular than other industrial crimes, and the frankly lawless I. W. W. no longer is the only outstanding agency responsible for industrial murder.

Let the criminal code be strengthened in the nation and the states. Society should take up the red gage of battle thrown down by the lawless legions of autocratic anarchy.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The courts of this county sent Mrs. Peete to the penitentiary for life, the feeling being that her sex alone saved her from the gallows. She had been found guilty of deliberate murder, her offense much accentuated by the subsequent display of brutal callousness. Since she has been in prison there have been numerous interviews with her. As though she had a message that the public desired to receive. It would be glad of the privilege of forgetting her, and reportorial flubdub and pathos centering about her fail to fill any recognized want.

HENRY JAMES

Still in the county jail is a woman twice tried for murder, and another charged with a slaying that for wanton ferocity seldom has been equaled. There is a habit of printing details as to the opinions, the conduct, the garb and the winning ways of this pair. The second woman is permitted to discuss her own case, to state that the principal witness against her lies. And then this witness is hunted up, and allowed to aver that she has not lied. The tendency of all the gossip is to create an artificial atmosphere, to lose the essential facts in a mess of stuff turned out by meddling sob-sisters, male and female. There ought to be a stop put to this silly business.

A man described as a picturesque hermit is about to seek refuge in Mexico. He has been in the seclusion of a California canyon for years, but finds that the seclusion is being impaired by the spread of civilization. There probably will be no effort to discourage his plan to give society the cold shoulder and lose himself below the Rio Grande. A hermit is not likely to be picturesque at all. He has small opportunity of being useful. The chances are that he is dirty, and that he promotes the nurture of cooties.

When a little revolt broke out in a Mexican city the first act of the leaders was to release all prisoners from the local jail. There being several murderers among them, it is safe to assume that they were qualified to endorse the principles of the gang that rescued them. A Mexican "revolt" so-called, ordinarily is the effort of a few bandits to get something to eat without working for it.

A familiar story is of two dogs of fierce and threatening aspect that appeared to hate each other with a hatred that meant the shedding of canine blood, if ever the pair got together. Alas, there was an impassable fence between. Along this they would race, muzzle to muzzle, with teeth bared, and the growl of destruction rumbling in their vitals. One day they, most unexpectedly, reached a hole in the fence. Either might have plunged through. Neither tried to plunge. On the contrary, they sniffed mutually and amiably, and turning, went their respective ways. The story is recalled because of the recent face-to-face meeting of Bill Hart and Lawyer Cohan, the latter representing Mrs. Hart in litigation. They had threatened to fight, to shoot, and there were fears that they might bite. And what did they do? Not a thing.

According to Senator Smoot, who knows so much about wool that he has even employed it to pull over the human eye, the added cost of clothes due to tariff will be a trifle. He says the extra price of a summer suit should be only $1.14; of a heavy winter suit, $1.62, and of an overcoat $2.78. These figures are so interesting that they are worth remembering.

Judge Trippet rules that the citizenship of a woman does not depend upon that of her husband. The wonder is that some jurist of discretion should not have done this long ago. A man, if informed that he must assume whatever happened to be the citizenship of the woman he married, would have raised a row. Well, some women did that very thing.

In a "Do You Remember?" column is this: "Do you remember when the Alta California was the leading paper of the coast?"

Yes. John P. Irish was editor at the time of its demise. He never wore a necktie in those days, and has worn none since. He was much given to scrapping, his habitual posture requiring a chip to be worn shoulderwise. Though many years have fled, the chip still is in position.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

When I reached the Castle of Heavenly Delights last night, with a basket of assorted groceries on my right elbow as a provision against the prospective interference with my comfort by free and independent fellow citizens who do not like to see me eat canned stuffs, unless they get $4 more a week as grocery clerks, I found little May Allison sitting on my front porch. For years May has kept me informed upon the serial progress of her love troubles.

"Jim," sobbed she, before I really got through the gate, "Jim—uh, uh, uh—says he won't marry me." Very much drawn out, that last, so that almost the effect of a squeal was produced. Heavy downfall of tears.

"So you're back to old Father Fixit, are you?" says I.

But that is giving myself undue credit. I never fixed anything for May. May never wanted me to fix anything, for she has always been able to keep the current young man hanging on until the time came to give him the coup de grace. She merely uses me as an outlet. By the time she has cried a cupful she feels all perked up and goes away smiling. I must then go in and square myself with Mrs. Pilgrim, who has been glaring out of the front windows.

"I'll see Jim," I promised. It seemed to me that May was taking this affair harder than usual, though I reflected that her heart-break was merely natural chagrin because Jim quit first. After all, the percentage of love deaths is strikingly small. But when I saw Jim I found that young hero hard as adamant.

"I do not propose to marry her," he said. "I used to be fond of her, but, darn it, her white gloves are never quite clean and her collars are always a little soiled and she is apt to be a few buttons and stitches shy. I cannot stand that sort of thing, because I was brought up differently."

"But she's such a nice little girl, Jim," I urged, weakly. My tones held no conviction. I wouldn't marry a girl whose gloves are not clean if she were the only girl in the world. Jim agreed heartily that she is a nice little girl. He was going unselfishly to stand back and let some one else have her.

Soiled gloves and soiled collars and unstitched stitches and buttonless buttonholes have cost May a fine husband. Little things, maybe, but life is wholly made up of little things.

THE BUILDING BOOM WILL BE ON IN GLENDALE SOON

In building a home you want to BUILD IT JUST RIGHT. You want to know the LUMBER AND BUILDING MATERIAL that goes into it is THE VERY BEST. You want to know every piece of material will stand the TEST OF TIME. But do you always stop to CONSIDER THE MAN WHO BUILDS IT? Do you know that your contractor is the most reliable and experienced you can get? It is just as important to HAVE A GOOD CONTRACTOR BEHIND THE JOB as it is to know you have good material. In fact, it is more important. The following contractors are reliable, have handled many big jobs in Glendale, can give the best reference, backed by a GOOD BOND if necessary, and the Glendale Daily Press heartily recommends them to anyone desiring to build:

BRILLIANT SKY GREETS OPENING OF THE SERIES

By HENRY L. FARRELL

NEW YORK, Oct. 4,—Fine, bright skies that promised all the comforts of summer gleamed over New York this morning for the big Baseball splurge of 1922.

Betting became brisker with the odds still slightly in favor of the Yanks. Some wagers were made at 7 to 5 but the Yank money was holding off for 6 to 5 and even money.

Miller Huggins, the little manager of the American league champions came out flat-footed and announced that Joe Bush, his "bullet ball" star of several years ago and this year, would do the pitching for the Yanks.

John McGraw, smiling under the glory of his eighth National league championship, said it was not his habit to show his hand in advance and he refused to name his pitcher.

The dopesters figured that either Arthur Nehf, his southpaw ace or Jock Scott, the huge righthander, who was discarded early last summer by the Cincinnati Reds, would get the call to do the mound work for the Giants.

It was generally believed that Nehf would perform on the dope that he is the most reliable pitcher on the staff and the known dislike of the Yanks to southpaw hurling would give him a good chance to cop the opener.

Wild rumors had the town gossiping last night and this morning. There was a story that Babe Ruth was down with an attack of acute indigestion. Huggins and Ruth himself denied this.

Officials of both clubs were expecting a capacity crowd of 40,000 in the big stands for the first battle of the series. Wild reports about huge crowds storming the ramparts at midnight kept thousands away from the opening game last year, but the assurance of the club owners that 20,000 seats would be available at 10 o'clock this morning did away with the old custom of the midnight lines, the soap boxes and the twenty-four hour lunches of the super fans.

Baseball celebrities from all over the country had gathered to sit in on the classic.

With the exception of the Baltimore and St. Paul clubs, which are having their little world's series, practically all the minor league magnates and managers were on hand. Most of the major league moguls and pilots, excepting the two Chicago teams, which are having their city series, were also gathered.

The crowd which had cheered itself hoarse greeting celebrities had a vigorous punch left to welcome Christy Mathewson, the former Giant pitching star and Al Smith, democratic nominee for governor of New York when they entered the stands.

Just before the game started the players of both clubs marched to center field, where they placed a large floral wreath on the monument of Eddie Grant, former Giant infielder, who was killed in the Argonne.

The crowd gave a great cheer khen the Giants took the field. The game started at 2:05 p.m.

CITY PRINTING

Announcing the opening of the

Lusby Mortgage & Investment Co.,

(INCORPORATED)

"Glendale's First Incorporated investment Service."

233 South Brand Boulevard, Glendale

A California Corporation Capitalized at $100,000

We are now open for business and extend an invitation to the people of Glendale and vicinity to visit us. We shall handle only high grade investments, inculding bonds, mortgages, etc.

It shall be our aim to give investors, buyers and sellers a service that will be the very best in the true sense of the word.

Those who have watched the steady march of progress in Southern California and in Glendale in particular, are convinced beyond any question of doubt that there are great things ahead, that we can look forward with confidence to a continued and well digested growth in population and business for some years to come. The recovery of the country as a whole from the depression of the past few years will, in our opinion, do much to promote the development of the great Pacific Southwest. Bank clearings and building permits issued continue to eclipse all records of previous years.

Southern California still continues its magic spell over our friends in the states to the east of us, and we who live here can understand why. For this reason, we look for a continued immigration of people who have long had their eyes on this section.

Property values are to a great extent proven, and investors who previously have put their savings into unproven properties, have been able to take out large profits because of their faith. However, many of those investors are seeking strictly income producing investments. The mortgage and bond field furnishes the best and most readily marketable securities for the conservative investor.

The incorporators of this Company have for some time been convinced that there is a need in Glendale and adjacent territory, for a service organization of this character. Service is our only justification for existence as an integral part of the business life of the community, and we cannot emphasize too strongly this fact, that progress is the result of systematic saving and investment alone and not to a continued flirtation with "wild cat" stocks.

We ask for the good will and cooperation of our many friends in this new undertaking, and feel sure we will have them.

EAGLE ROCK IS ON FORD SALES MAP

Caddell Sells Twelve Machines to Barker Bros. of L. A.

Sol Gans stated this morning that he had concrete proof that Eagle Rock is on the map, and then with the permission of J. G. Caddell, who chanced to be near at the time, told his st ory.

"Eleven, seventeen and twenty used to be the lucky numbers on the roulette wheel. All old gamblers recognized them as the lucky points.

"There are just seventeen competitive Ford dealers in the Los Angeles district, and the Caddell Motor company proved to be the lucky one out of the seventeen. Barker Bros. have just signed an order for 12 Fords, both touring and roadster models, and the deal was closed by Ed Martmer of the Caddell Motor company of Eagle Rock."

Mr. Caddell vouched for the statements made by Gans, but disclaimed any of the credit of placing the sale. He said all of that was due to Martmer.

AMERICA GREETS TOURISTS WITH COLORS

First Striking Thing Seen on Reaching New York, Says Mrs. Gurney

"The first thing that strikes you upon arriving in New York from across the Atlantic, is the immense amount of color used in the dress of the American women," stated Mrs. Asa Guy Gurney, wife of the general manager of the American Railway Express for the continent, who is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Betty Connelly, of 120 West Mariposa, for a period of five weeks before returning to her beautiful home in Paris.

"In Paris, the colors used are much darker, and I should say that out of every ten hats, nine are black. I don't like to concede any superiority to the French over the Americans, but I do think that the French display more taste in dress than the Americans."

"Well, what would you suggest to the American woman to improve her dress?" the interviewer asked.

"Not to wear so much sports clothes," was the prompt reply. "I consider the sports clothes out of place, unless the wearer can afford the places where they are proper. A suit is much better, because you can wear a suit wherever you can wear sports clothes, and I don't think a small village is the place for sports clothes. I don't know whether the American women who seem to have so universally adopted the sports attire will agree with me or not, but to see so many sweaters worn by the Americans in France always seemed out of place to me."

"As for bobbed hair—it is not at all a characteristic of the French. Only the Americans in Paris have bobbed hair. I think I have met only three really French women, during the three years I have spent in France, who had their hair bobbed. The style that was becoming popular when I left, was a great deal the same as that which is popular with the young women of America, who have not bobbed their hair. What do you call it, when they have it puffed way out over the ears? O, yes, banking it. That seems to be the coming mode, and I'm not so sure that the American women introduced it in Paris, as before that, the styles were very simple.

"You have doubtless heard people speak of the excellent housekeeping of the French women, and how very economical they are. Well, that is not true at all, in my estimation. The American housewife knows a great deal more about the business of successful housekeeping, than the French woman. They know nothing at all about baking, such as the American woman does, and their pastries are all made in the bakeries.

"I find that the market prices are much lower here than over there, so you can tell the people who think they are paying high prices, that they can be thankful they are not in Europe."

In regard to the political situation of the countries since the war, Mrs. Gurney excused herself from making a statement, other than that "they are in very much of a mixup." She said, "I don't think anyone would venture a statement in regard to the political situation just at this time. Conditions are especially doubtful in Germany, where I spent six weeks. The mark is now very low, and of course that effects the French markets, too. Things have been more stable in France for the past year, than in the other countries. We have heard some talk about war, but I don't believe there is a possibility of it as far as the French are concerned."

As to the Frenchman's opinion of the American, unbiased by any patriotic impulse, Mrs. Gurney answered, "The French entertain much admiration for the progressiveness of the Americans, but they think we are very foolish. They consider that they enjoy life much more than the Americans, because they say we live too fast. There is one thing the French can't understand, and that is how the American can eat a meal in 10 minutes that a Frenchman would linger over for two hours. Many of them speak of this?"

"But is it true," we asked, "that the French consider that the Americans live faster than they do? That seems quite a blow to the American who thinks he has to go to Paris to find the gay life, don't you think?"

"Oh, well, it is mostly the Americans in Paris who lead the gay life. There is a colony of between 20,000 and 25,000 Americans in Paris, and it is true that they live a very gay and a very high life. If you want a place where there is always something to do, Paris is the place, for there are always horse races or something of the kind."

"Do you people seem to be spending a great amount of money since the war?"

"O, my, yes! From the great amount of money spent in Paris today, you wouldn't believe that there was any poverty in Paris. And the prices that are placed on the things that the people buy! Paris has also seen more American visitors this year than any year before the war. This I know to be true, my husband holding the position he does with the American Express, and many of them have their mail sent to the express office."

"Does Paris have a recognized flapper type?"

Here Mrs. Gurney smiled.

"Yes," she said, simply. "Paris does. She's more slender and perhaps a little taller than the American flapper, with very fetching eyes. In fact, she's mostly all eyes."

"Do they have a recognized name for the type?"

"Yes, they call them the 'poilet,' French for 'chickens.' But the French girls of the better class don't have anything like the liberty the American girls have. They are not allowed to go on auto parties and dances as the American girls are allowed to do, and when they are invited out, their parents are usually invited too, and expect to go with them."

"How is France fixed for newspapers?"

"Well, the newspapers of Paris have only four pages, and there is scarcely any advertising. How they exist without the volume of advertising has puzzled more than one, yet they don't charge as much for the paper as Americans do for theirs. There is a very great difference in the price charged for advertising, though, as I placed an ad with an American paper that cost me 80 cents, and the French paper, charged me $3.50 for the same ad. They pay well for what advertising they do, but the French do most of their business through friendship, as they term it.

"Yes, there are lots of movie houses in Paris, and I think their favorite actor is Charlie Chaplin, for he is the only one they mention when they speak of the movies. Charlie Chaplin's comedies seem to suit the Frenchman exactly. They are very fond of the element of the sex mixup, and their plays are full of it. I think it is this that makes them like Chaplin's comedies. The films shown in France are practically all either American or English. I don't think there are any producing companies in France."

Mrs. Asa Gurney has traveled much during the past three years, since her husband accepted the management of the American Express in Paris, for the continent. She has toured through Switzerland, Italy, Algiers, parts of France and Germany, and has come to America for a visit, and intends to return in December. She has promised to give additional interviews on subjects that might interest the people of Eagle Rock. As for Eagle Rock, she stated that she was quite charmed with the city, and considered it very pretty indeed.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE SOWER AND THE SEEDS

A man once read that we should all
If we are high or low,
Go through the world and scatter seeds
Of flowers as we go;
It was a goodly thing to do
He thought, 'twould serve a need,
And so he set him forth to strew
Some dandelion seed.

He strewed them here, he strewed them there,
Before, beside, behind,
He threw them broadcast everywhere
And cast them on the wind.
For he had read that we should all,
If we are high or low,
Go through the world and scatter seeds
Of flowers as we go.

And soon in every vacant lot
And on the lawns so green,
There came a vivid yellow spot,
The yellowest you've seen,
And all his flowers went to seed,
And o'er and o'er and o'er,
Until each little field of them
Made quite a million more.

And all the lawns that were so green
Were yellow as could be,
And not a single blade of grass
In any could you see,
And men were busy digging them
With all their might and main,
They dug today, tomorrow they
Came right back up again.

And then the people all rose up
And found the sower's name,
And what they did when they found him
I tell you was a shame.
It's right to scatter seeds of flowers
As through the world you go,
But in a world of nice green lawns
Be careful what you sow.

FANNING WITH FARRELL

Politics in Dempsey-Wills Mixup

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Difficulty in getting Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills into the ring to settle the heavyweight championship question has been attributed to numerous causes.

It has been said that Dempsey is afraid of his colored challenger and that he wanted the bout delayed at least a year, with the idea that he would have a better chance to retain his title if Wills could be kept waiting until next summer.

However, it has been learned from the most reliable information that Dempsey was eager to give the colored man a chance this summer, but that he was prevented by the activities of republican politicians.

The administration at Albany did not want the fight staged before election time, because the reform element would get up on its rear legs if the bout came off and the liberal element would be just as provoked if any official obstacles were placed in the way, according to this story.

* * * * * *

Jack Kearns wanted the fight staged in New York and when Wills submitted an official challenge, Kearns came immediately to New York to accept. Some hitches arose and the rumor was spread around that Governor Miller would not sanction a mixed bout.

This rumor had to be stopped, because of its effect on the colored voters of New York. At the last election, Mayor Hylan carried two big districts of the colored settlement and it was the first time that those districts had turned from the republican party. To counteract the democratic propaganda being used in the colored districts, Governor Miller then said that he had no objection to a fight between a white man and a colored man and that he hoped the better man would win.

Attention was then drawn by the republican leaders that the party would be in danger up state if the fight were staged before election and it would create dissension in the ranks in New York if the commission would not allow the bout to be staged.

* * * * * *

The only way was to throw some other obstacle in the way. The ideal way was to have it appear that Dempsey didn't want to fight. Kearns was sounded out and on the promise that he could have the fight in New York next summer he agreed to take the role of holding the bag. Kearns figured that if the republicans won he was sure of his position and if the liberal democrats should win he would be running no risk.

* * * * * *

Kearns then let it be known that the champion wanted $500,000 to fight and that he wasn't particular about fighting until next summer. He was severely criticised and the champion was accused of stalling for time and trying to cloud the real issue by talking of set-up fights with Greb, Willard, Brennan and Carpentier.

Finally the sharp tongues worked under the hide of Kearns and he said he was willing and ready to fight on two weeks' notice, but that no promoter had made him an offer.

That was a harmless statement until John O'Connor, the head of the club at the Polo grounds, came through with an offer for the fight. The politicians were then up against it. The commission had forced Dempsey to sign an agreement, had unofficially given its approval for the mixed bout and a promoter was willing to stage the bout.

Kearns could do nothing more, but the commission then delivered another punch at the bout by naming impossible conditions. The chairman of the commission asked for an arena that would seat 100,000 and there will be nothing of that size in New York until next summer, when the new Yankee stadium will be available.

Another political stroke was made when the commission demanded 40,000 seats at $2. The ward workers told the voters in the colored district that the commission and the governor knew they weren't making a lot of money and that they were all anxious to see the fight and they would make it their business to see that the poor colored man got to see that fight of all fights.

That ended the negotiations. No more offers were made for the fight, Kearns arranged to get Dempsey out of the country until the first of the year and the politicians are resting easy until after election.

The fight is sure to come off, but it will not be until next July and the Yankee stadium probably will be the site.

OPENING RECITAL EMERSON SCHOOL

The opening recital of the season was given at the Emerson School of Self-Expression on Monday evening and was enjoyed by an appreciative audience.

Mrs. Labadie, director of the school, graciously welcomed the guests and introduced Mrs. Retta King Nelson, a member of the faculty of the school, and a well-known soloist.

Mrs. Nelson sang the contralto part in the quartet of the Pilgrimage Play this summer and has given pleasure to many through radio concerts.

She has a beautiful voice under excellent control, and her songs last night were well rendered and enjoyed by everyone. She gave the following songs in three groups:

"Beloved, It is Morn" (Aylward).
Elegie's "Massenet."
"Sunrise and You" (Penn.)
"From the Land of Skyblue Water" (Cadman).
"By the Waters of Minnetonka" (Lieurance).
"Pale Moon" (Logan).
"Greatest Miracle of All" (Guion)
"Rockin' in de Win'" (Neidlinger).

The song recital was followed by a short one-act play presented by Dr. Anderson and Mr. Biederman, entitled "Please Pass the Milk."

The manner in which the play was carried out showed thought and careful prepaartion. The long-suffering husband and his critical wife brought many a laugh from the audience who felt that the play came to an end all too soon.

After the program the guests remained to enjoy a social time and test the excellent punch served by Miss Wright and her young assistant hostesses.

W. B. KELLY IS TALKING OF US

W. B. Kelly, realtor of this city, who is in Louisville, Kentucky, attending the convention of Exchange Clubs from various parts of the country, is doing a lot of shouting for Glendale. He took with him a lot of booster literature from the local chamber of commerce. This he is distributing among the Kentuckians, who devour it as a trout does a big fat worm. "W. B." says it may be true that they're still making it in "Kentuck," but up to the present time he hasn't been able to locate it.

The San Francisco man was speaking. "I do not believe in all this "boost' business," he said. "There is too much brag about it. Especially I do not believe in running down other cities, other parts of the country. It is making claims to excellence that do not need to be made, and failure to recognize which is the country's loss, not ours. We should not do it. It is not modest and is likely to arouse jealousy. But I will say this much for San Francisco: Wherever you go from here it is worse."

Pacific-Southwest Review

By D. H. SMITH

Manager Brand Boulevard Branch Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank

D.H.Smith

It is believed by many students of finance that the development of branch banking in California is the beginning of a movement which may eventually result in the United States again adopting a system of banking which coincides, in all major principles, with the banking systems which have proved successful in all other important commercial countries.

Such a development would re-establish a banking system of the type which was undergoing rapid development in the United States until the exigencies of the Civil war started the United States in the development of banking practices absolutely at variance with those in all other countries of the world.

Prior to the Civil war, practically the only banks which had maintained records of long and successful existence in the United States were those which were based upon the branch banking principles.

Due to government financing requirements during the Civil war, a system of national banks was inaugurated in the United States. This system was developed primarily to finance the government with little attention to scientific banking principles, and so made no provision for branch banking. While not entirely satisfactory, it was so much superior to certain state banking systems, or rather lack of systems, which were existent in this country, that the various state bank laws gradually came to be modeled closely upon the national bank law and consequently almost entirely eliminated branch banking in the United States.

In the meantime, other countries were developing important branch banking systems until today the United States stands as the one leading commercial country which is not operating its banks primarily along this line.

It is particularly interesting to note that irrespective of the stage of development of the country in which tried, branch banking has always proved popular and successful. For example, England, France and Germany, leading commercial and industrial countries prior to the war, were operating most successfully under a series of branch banks. On the other hand, such countries as Canada, which were largely countries undergoing development of natural resources, found branch banking systems necessary to their most satisfactory growth.

In the United States, the only important piece of national banking legislation passed since the Civil war was the Federal Reserve Act, which recognized the undoubted soundness of the branch banking principle and the benefits to accrue to the country through the operation of branch banks within the Federal Reserve Bank System.

Now California is definitely adopting the banking system which has universally proved successful in all other countries, and the entire financial world is watching the development of branch banking in this state in the belief that this system, based upon the sound principles which have made branch banking the most effective banking system throughout the world, may mark the beginning of the return of the United States to the banking principles which have proved most serviceable in all other countries.

The change of name of this bank to the Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings Bank was made so that the title under which it operates may be properly descriptive of the territory served.
